RAILWAY MUST IMPROVE LINE

COUNCIL MAKES NEW MOVE
AGAINST STREET RAILWAY.

GIVEN NINETY DAYS TO ACT

Other Business Last Night Included Acceptance of Reports And Ordering of Improvements.

That the Janesville Street Railway company must, within ninety days, comply with the conditions specified in City Attorney Maxfield's order, was the decision of the common council at their regular meeting last night. The order of the city attorney, specifying what improvements would be necessary, was published in the last issue of the Gazette. There was but one change made and that at the instance of Ald. Buchholz, who thought that thirty days were not sufficient in which to make all the changes demanded and who moved that the time limit be made ninety days. The order as amended was passed with-out a dissenting vote. In case the company does not comply with the demands of the city attorney in the matter of improving the road bed, rails and overhead wires, and bringing the rolling stock up to date, action will be taken to deprive the company of its franchise. From all appearances, should the order be disregarded, the action will be successful.

Quarterly Report.
H. C. Klein, chief engineer of the street department, presented his report for the quarter ending Sept. 13, which was accepted and placed on file. The report states that while the department has responded to fifty-one alarms of fire, the loss from fires has been very small. The horses, with the exception of "Doc," the chief horse, were reported to be in good condition, and the same was said of the rolling stock. In addition, the chief asked that the street department, during the past month, 400 feet of three-inch hose valued at thirty cents a foot, the fire department be credited with that amount. Two fire alarm boxes, number 515 at the intersection of Pleasant and Milwaukee streets, and 311 at the corner of Jackson street and Oakland avenue, were reported to be in an unreliable condition. In conclusion, the chief asked that two dozen rubber coats be purchased for the department in view of the fact that winter was near and the ones now in use worn out. After the report had been read by the clerk, Ald. Buchholz moved that the chief make his requisitions for supplies to the Public Buildings committee. This was carried and the chief's report accepted and placed on file.

Women's Clubs.
A petition from two women's clubs was read by Ald. Sherman, asking that the clubs be allowed the privilege of using the assembly room for afternoon meetings. After it had been learned that the clubs were willing to reimburse the city for any extra trouble the petition was granted. The clubs applying for the privilege were the Art League and the Athena club.

A petition from the Janesville business college requesting permission to put up a display sign on Milwaukee street, was referred to the Highway committee and upon motion of the chairman was granted.

Appeal And Protest.
J. F. Hutchinson's appeal in his case against the city of Janesville, which was referred to the Judiciary committee, was upon motion of Ald. Dulin, placed on the table. The same action was taken in regard to the protest of Mrs. C. M. R. Pease and others with regard to the placing of sewers on Pease's Court.

Reports Accepted.
The city treasurer's report for the month of August was accepted and upon motion of Ald. Evans, the city clerk was ordered to draw orders in payment of the bills specified. The municipal court report for the month of August, that of the board of education for the same month, the report of Sup't. W. E. Dulin of the street engineer were all accepted. The street commissioner's report on sidewalks needed was also accepted and the walks ordered built.

Resignation Accepted.
Constable Wallace E. Watts, elected to that office in the second ward for two years, beginning April 21, 1909, tendered his resignation to take effect immediately. Upon motion of Ald. Buchholz the resignation was accepted.

Bills Paid.
For ten days' work as janitor of the city hall, during the absence of the regular janitor, the city clerk was ordered to draw on the general fund to the amount of $20, in favor of Julius Hoveland. The clerk was also ordered to draw on the fourth ward fund in favor of J. C. Moad of Green Bay, $13.44 for a curbing built on Cherry street. The report of the Street Assessment committee was also adopted and the treasurer ordered to pay the First National bank as assignee of the People's Construction company, $400. The assignments of the People's Construction company to the First National bank were first accepted as was the guarantee bond of A. C. Mead of Green Bay. The amount paid the People's Construction company was equally divided between the fourth ward sewer fund and the main outfall sewer fund.

Work Ordered.
Other work ordered and plans adopted were as follows: Plans and specifications were adopted and placed on file for water, gas and sewer pipes on Jackson, Sinclair, South Second and South Third streets; the sewer on North Third street was ordered extended 165 feet to reach lot 3 in J. M. Smith's subdivision; a reinforced concrete floor on the Mole culvert was ordered constructed under the direction of the city engineer; a motion was made to assess damages and benefits for improving by gutters and curbing, Olive street from Madison to Washington; the street sweepers were ordered to discontinue the street commissioner was ordered to repair all crosswalks and waterways on Cherry street which had been disturbed by grading operations; the street commissioner was also ordered to extend the storm sewer on Rayline street from River to Franklin, from the westerly side of Franklin street to the westerly side of Jackson street; the curb lines on the east side of Williams street from Glen street to Fourth avenue were established at a distance of 18 feet from the property line and sidewalks at eight feet from the property line; at gutter at Carroll and Glen streets were ordered repaired and repairs were ordered made on the arch from Pleasant street to the railway tracks and the gutters cleaned.

The meeting was adjourned at 10 o'clock on motion of Ald. Richardson.

"DAN" WILLIAMS IS NEW PASTOR

OSHKOSH DIVINE COMING SUN-DAY TO TAKE CHARGE.

OF CARGILL M. E. CHURCH

Fine Record at Beaver Dam, Marinette, and Milwaukee—Rev. Mr.
Tippet Supt. of Appleton Dist.

At the closing session of the Wisconsin Methodist conference at Oshkosh yesterday afternoon Bishop McQuinn read the list of appointments and the announcement contained many surprises for the ministers. The assignment of Rev. T. D. Williams as superintendent of the Oshkosh district in place of Rev. T. D. Williams, was known all day that the appointment to the Janesville church was giving the bishop and his cabinet considerable anxiety. The committee was not united on Rev. S. H. Anderson of Marinette, but it was willing to accept Mr. Williams, and as the latter was anxious to return to pastoral work, an adjustment which pleased all concerned was finally reached.

Strong Man in Methodism.

The Rev. Mr. Williams is one of the strong men in Methodism and Janesville is to be congratulated on the appointment. Known among his colleagues by the affectionate title of "Dan," to distinguish him from a brother who is also in the conference, he is a young man in the early '40s and has made an excellent record as superintendent of the Oshkosh district during the past four years. He is a graduate of Lawrence University at Appleton, and has held the pastorates at Beaver Dam, Marinette, and Trinity church, Milwaukee. On Sunday next he will preach his first sermon in the Cargill Memorial M. E. pulpit.

Beloit's New Pastor

Rev. J. H. Tippet, former pastor of the Cargill church, was named as superintendent of the Appleton district to succeed the Rev. Perry Miller, who has held that position for six years and who is assigned to the Kenosha church. Rev. John Reynolds continues as superintendent of the Janesville church. Beloit's new pastor is Rev. E. D. Kohlstedt of the Ashbury church, Milwaukee. No appointment was made for the newly created position of field superintendent of Sunday school work, the cabinet not being able to agree upon a man for the office. The bishop will name the incumbent at an early date. The special appointments include W. J. Patton, president of the Memorial University at Mason City, Ia., as member of the Janesville quarterly conference, and J. S. McChesney, agent of the endowment fund for agricultural claimants, member of the Grand avenue, Milwaukee, quarterly conference. By a large vote the conference accepted the invitation to meet at Edgerton next year. The Janesville delegates have all returned from the session. They were: Rev. John Reynolds, T. E. Robinson, George A. Jacobs, and Sidney Richardson.

LETTERS MAY CLEAR GREEN BAY PRINTER

Evidence Produced This Morning
Puts New Aspect on Muni-

City Court Case.
Evidence in the shape of letters produced by William Marshall of Green Bay, who was accused by Nelson Wohler, a former waitress at a local hotel of being the father of her child, has caused District Attorney Fisher to drop active measures against the Green Bay man who has been allowed to go free under bonds of five hundred dollars. At the hearing this morning, Atty. T. S. Nolan produced the letter in which the girl clears Marshall and places the blame on another. In view of the disclosures made, it was thought best to adjourn the case until Oct. 7, when Judge Mitchell will return from his vacation and when the case will be again brought up. The affair appears to be an unfortunate tangle from the very beginning and although Marshall will doubtless be cleared, he has expressed his intention of helping defray part of the girl's expenses as the guilty party can not be reached. There has been nothing but sympathy expressed for the real sufferer in the case who has won the sympathy of all who know her during her short stay in town by the way she has sacrificed everything in order to have enough money to procure proper care when it would be most needed.

Directors of Owen Thomas Co. Will Probably Choose Janesville for Location of Shops.

At the postponed meeting of the directors of the Owen Thomas Motor Car company to be held in Chicago on September 21, the location of the factory for the manufacture of the cars will be chosen and the size of the building will be decided upon. Janesville will probably be selected as the site of the building as the majority of the stockholders favor this place, and the building will undoubtedly be built here. Mr. Thomas drove the demonstration car to Chicago a few days ago and will return with it today. The machine has been the subject of a great deal of favorable comment among the auto enthusiasts in the metropolis, just as was the case at the automobile show held in the Windy City last year. Two prominent automobile agencies desire to handle the car and have offered to take care of the entire output of the factory.

WAITING TO MEET DR. FREDERICK COOK

PEARY WILL PRODUCE PROOFS WHEN RIVAL SIGNS CLAIM TO DISCOVERY.

REPEATS CHARGE OF FAKE

Further Details of How Commander and One Eskimo Reached the Top of the World Given by Members of Party.

Battle Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 14.—When Dr. Frederick A. Cook makes the claim over his own signature that he discovered the north pole, Commander Robert E. Peary says he will produce his evidence to prove the Brooklyn physician's assertions untrue.

Peary, when told that Cook contemplates meeting him face to face to demand proof of his sensational charges, said he had no fear of such a meeting and will be prepared to "make good."

Peary is anxious that Dr. Cook should reach New York first, although he adds that the Brooklyn explorer's attempts to induce scientists to believe his story will be futile.

Commander Peary's steamer Roosevelt now is in good condition and will leave Battle Harbor Thursday or Friday for North Sydney.

The government steamer Tyrann with newspaper correspondents, left North Sydney last night to meet Commander Peary and the arctic ship somewhere off the west coast of Newfoundland. Efforts will be made to get Commander Peary to board the Tyrann, which is a much faster ship than the Roosevelt, and go to Sydney.

Only Two Men at Pole.

According to members of Peary's expedition the only men to reach the pole were Commander Peary and one Eskimo, Egging Wah by name. The other white members of the various parties that left Cape Columbia were sent back one by one as Peary drew daily nearer to his goal. Matthew Hansen, Peary's man "Friday," and three Eskimos, the only other members of the reduced party that made the final dash, were left one march south of the pole.

Capt. Robert A. Bartlett and George Borup started February 27 from Cape Columbia, with a number of Eskimos and dogs on the march across the ice, heading north. On March 1 Commander Peary left Cape Columbia with his party, consisting of seven white men, 17 Eskimos and 126 dogs.

That day for ten hours and made 20 miles. They then slept near the eighty-ninth parallel. While crossing a stretch of young ice 300 yards wide the sledge broke through. It was saved, but two of the Eskimos had narrow escapes from drowning.

Made Fast Time.

The ice was still good, and the dogs were in great shape. They made as high as 25 miles a day.

The next observation was made at 58.25. The next two marches were in a dense fog. The sun was sighted on the third march, and an observation showed 59.57.

The pole was reached April 6, and a series of observations were taken at 90°. Peary deposited his records and hoisted the American flag. The temperature was 32 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit). The pole appeared as a frozen sea. Peary tried to take a sounding, but got no bottom at 1,500 fathoms.

On the return the marchers were continuous, and Peary and the Eskimos suffered greatly from fatigue. They had their first sleep at the end of the eighth march from the pole, in the igloo left by Bartlett. Here there was a violent snowstorm.

On April 23 the party reached the vertical edge of the land ice, west of Cape Columbia. The Eskimos were delighted to reach land, and the party slept for two days. They repaired their sledges, rested their dogs, and resuming the journey, reached the Roosevelt April 27.

Tell of Marvin's Death.

Marvin left Peary on the way up on Friday, March 26, to return to the ship. He had with him two Eskimos and 17 dogs. The story of the professor's death was obtained from one of the Eskimos. April 10 Marvin was 45 miles from Cape Columbia. He started out that morning, walking ahead. The Eskimos were delayed in packing the sledges, a fact that permitted Marvin to get a good start on them. When the Eskimos arrived at an open lead they noticed that the young ice was broken about 25 yards out, and they saw what looked like a man's body floating in the center of the lead. Owing to the treacherous condition of the ice the Eskimos could not venture out. They returned to the Roosevelt and reported. Capt. Bartlett then went back to the point they designated and recovered Prof. Marvin's spare boots, clothing and personal belongings, which were still on the ice where the Eskimos had left them. The superstitions of their race prevented the natives from bringing the dead man's effects with them. Prof. Marvin's records and observations were saved.

Has None of Cook's Records.

New York, Sept. 14.—The following wireless and cable message has been received in this city:

"Battle Harbor, Labrador, via Cape Ray, N. F., Sept. 12.—I have no knowledge of Cook's having given Whitney any records. There are no Cook records on the Roosevelt. PEARY."

In Copenhagen Dr. Frederick A. Cook declared that he had given to Harry Whitney, the wealthy young big game hunter, part of the records of his observations on his return from the north pole to Etah, Greenland. Dr. Cook assumed that Whitney would bring his records to this country. Commander Robert E. Peary on his return from the pole, a year subsequent to that of Dr. Cook, picked up Mr. Whitney at Etah and was bringing him south on the Roosevelt when they met the relief ship Jeannie, to which Whitney was transferred to continue his hunting for a few weeks in Baffin bay.

It was confidently expected by Dr. Cook's supporters here that Mr. Whitney had turned these records over to Commander Peary and that the latter would bring them to this country with him.

Previous assumption that Commander Peary would have the U. S. navy solidly behind him was not borne out in a letter from Rear Admiral Schley (retired) made public by Capt. B. S. Osborn, secretary of the Arctic Club of America, of which Dr. Cook is a member. The letter, under date of September 11, runs in part as follows:

"I like Cook's attitude immensely in this unfortunate, unnecessary and unwise controversy. He certainly has been dignified and manly in the stand he has taken in this matter."

Peary Boatwain Upholds Cook. St. John, N. F., Sept. 14.—Alan Whitten, who was boatwain of the Peary auxiliary steamer Erik in 1905 and again in 1908, adds his quota to the polar controversy. On his expedition he naturally saw much of Peary and knew of Peary's plans. He was also on the Erik in the summer of 1907, when she lay for a week in Sydney alongside the schooner John H. Bradley, in which Dr. Cook was starting for the pole, the Erik that year going to Hudson Bay for the Canadian government.

Whitten says that the Bradley was abundantly equipped for Cook's expedition, having supplies for at least three years. He confirms the charge made by Dr. Cook at Copenhagen that Peary's people took Cook's provisions, adding that not only did the crew of the ship take Cook's stores that were at Etah, but that boats were sent to Annotok, 30 miles distant, to remove Cook's provisions, which were stored there.

Whitten admitted, however, that he did not know if this removal was by arrangement between Rudolph Francke, who was left in charge of the provisions, and Peary, or Peary's representatives, but he thought that in any event it was a strange thing to do in view of the fact that Cook was then away on the ice floor and might return and find his provisions gone.

The boatwain also made the statement that both Cook's and Francke's collections of ivory and skins, some of them very valuable, likewise were taken.

Making Money On the Farm

XV.—Locating and Planting the Orchard

By G. V. GREGORY.
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

EVERY farm should have at least a few fruit trees to provide fruit for home use. Where soil and climate are favorable and a good market can be secured fruit growing for market is a very profitable business.

The most important point in planning an orchard is selecting the location. The land should be naturally well drained if possible. If not, artificial drainage should be resorted to. A moderate northeast slope is the most desirable. Trees on a north slope do not start as quickly in the spring, and the danger of having the fruit buds killed by an untimely frost is lessened. An orchard on such a slope also suffers less from sun scald and drought.

If the hill on which the farm buildings are placed is large enough the orchard can be located on the north slope and the buildings on the south. A windbreak of a double row of evergreens on the west and north will stop the snow in winter and help to keep the fruit from being blown off in summer. To complete this protection the windbreak will have to be extended all the way around, since in summer many of the heavy winds come from a southerly direction.

Air Drainage.

The question of air drainage is fully as important as that of water drainage. Cold air is heavy and drains rapidly into the hollows, while the air on the slopes is warm and dry. The difference of a few feet in elevation often makes a difference of several degrees in temperature. An orchard located on a ridge of land will escape many of the frosts that cut down the profits in an orchard less favorably located. Trees on a hill are also less likely to be troubled with fungous diseases, since dry air is not favorable to them.

A soil too rich in nitrogen promotes fast and wood growth at the expense of fruit. For this reason black prairie soil is not so well adapted to fruit growing as some other lands. Loamy subsoil underlain with a porous subsoil makes an ideal foundation for an orchard. Cleared timberland is also very good.

You cannot expect success with an orchard if you plant the trees in a hole in the soil. The land should be put in to some cultivated crop for at least a year before setting out the trees. This gets the soil in good tilth, and the trees will have a fair chance from the start.

What to Plant.

Having decided on the location for the orchard, the next step is to select the kinds and varieties of fruit to be grown. The apple is the most widely grown tree fruit in this country. It has hardy varieties that can be grown well up into the northern sections.

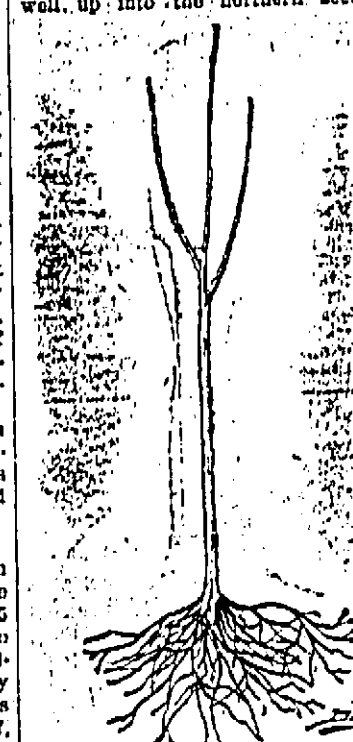

FIG. XXIX.—THRIFTY YOUNG APPLE TREE.

While other varieties are adapted to southern conditions, the plum is even more hardy than the apple, and some of the improved varieties give as delicious fruit as could be asked for. Cherries are also fairly hardy, and a few trees are a valuable addition to any orchard. In the milder sections peaches and pears can be added to the list.

The question of variety is one that must be answered for individual conditions. The old standard varieties are the most reliable. Varieties that are already doing well in your locality can be depended on. Your state experiment station or horticultural society will gladly furnish you a list of the varieties that are adapted to your locality. One mistake often made in setting out an apple orchard is in planting too many summer and fall varieties. These are of little value for market; they do not keep well and are largely wasted unless they can be canned or dried. Since the development of cold storage some of the better keeping varieties, such as Wealthy, can be kept nearly all winter. Not all farmers have too or are located within reach of a storage warehouse, however.

It will generally pay to put a large part of the orchard into reliable winter varieties. For home use apples are appreciated more along toward spring and will bring a higher price.

An important point to consider in selecting varieties is quality. This is especially important in those grown for home use. When the fruit is to be shipped any considerable distance, shipping and keeping qualities are of first importance, and the eating and cooking qualities take a secondary place. Yield is also important.

Buy at the Home Nursery.

In buying fruit trees it is best to steer clear of agents with plausible stories of wonderful quality and yield. Some nursery agents are honest and conscientious, but so many are not that it is difficult to separate the sheep from the goats. The best way is to make your selection of varieties, and then get the trees of some reliable nurseryman in your own locality. If you can go to the nursery and buy them of the nurseryman himself so much the better. In that case you can select the trees yourself and be sure of getting good ones. Thrifty ones or two year old trees, with well developed root systems, stand transplanting better and are cheaper than larger ones.

As soon as the trees are received from the nursery they should be "heeled in." This is done by digging a trench and covering the roots and about half of the tops with dirt. When the trees have been shipped for some distance it sometimes happens that they are frozen when received. In this case they should be placed in some outbuilding, covered with straw and left to thaw out gradually. In this way little harm will be done.

Preparation for Planting.

The land should be deeply plowed before planting and, well disked and harrowed. It is a good practice to make the back furrows where the rows are to be and the dead furrows between the rows. The dead furrows will thus serve as ditches to carry off surplus water. It is better to do this plowing in the fall if the preceding crop can be got off the land in time. In the south the planting may be done in the fall also, but in sections where the ground freezes to any depth it is safer to plant in the spring. Fall planted trees are liable to root killing during the winter. In the drier parts of the country, too, the roots do not get sufficient moisture to supply the trunk and branches, and the tree is so badly dried out during the winter that it is killed.

In lands with a stiff subsoil running a subsoil plow down the row before planting is practiced with good results. In extremely hard soils a little dynamite exploded in the bottom of the hole loosens up the subsoil considerably. The hole should be dug larger than the roots of the tree and fine soil thrown in around the roots. The roots should be well spread out and the tree set three or four inches deeper than it is to be finally. By taking hold of the top and churning it up and down after the roots have been covered with dirt the soil will be thoroughly worked in around the roots. As the tree is worked up and down it is gradually raised to the proper height.

Part of the top should be cut off before planting. The top is dependent on the roots for its moisture supply. A considerable part of the root system has been lost in transplanting, and the top should be cut back to match. In planting one or two-year-old trees, known as "whips," this cutting back serves a double purpose by causing the tree to throw out branches just below where it is cut off. In trees of this kind the cut should be a few inches above where the first branches are to be.

There is considerable difference of opinion concerning the proper height to head apple trees. Low headed trees are much less liable to wind scald since the branches shade the trunk. They are easier to spray, and the apples can be more easily gathered. There is also much less damage from large branches being broken off by the wind. The chief objection to low heading is that it is difficult to get near the tree when cultivating the orchard. This objection, however, is hardly enough to outweigh the advantages of low heading.

If the soil is firmly packed there is little need of using water in the hole when planting trees. The dirt should be packed very firmly around the roots. Get in with both feet and pack it as hard as possible. It is a good plan to lean the trees a little to the south in order that the branches may shade the trunk better and also because the hardest winds in summer are usually from a southerly direction. The standard distance apart for apple trees is thirty-two to forty feet in each way. Plum and cherry trees may be as close as twenty feet. Apple trees are often planted 18 by 32 feet, the alternate rows being of some early bearing, short lived variety. When the latter trees come into bearing these fillers should be cut out.

English Sacred Tree. The ancient Saxon's sacred tree was the ash, and there still exists on Richmond hill, barely ten miles from London, an ash tree which is even now used in folk medicine. Weekly children must be carried nine times around the tree and at such a time in the morning that the sun rises during the ceremony.

WHERE PRESIDENT TAFT WILL STOP DURING HIS TRIP AROUND THE UNITED STATES.

FACTS ABOUT TRIP
Will travel about 14,000 miles.

On the road over 50 days.
Will deliver over 60 set speeches besides hundreds of important train talks.
Speeches all delivered in West and South.

Will be in 33 states during the trip.
Will meet President Diaz of Mexico at El Paso, Texas.

On March 4 Peary came up with Bartlett, who had pitched his camp at the side of a lead of water which it was impossible to cross. The combined parties had to wait until March 11, seven days, before further progress was possible. The sun was seen for the first time March 5, and an observation showed that the explorers were a short way from the eighty-fourth parallel. The supply of alcohol was running short, and Borup returned to Cape Columbia for a fresh stock.

McMillan Sent Back.

March 14 Borup overtook Peary again and brought a supply of oil and alcohol. The division under Prof. Ross G. Marvin joined Peary the same day. At this point Prof. Ronald B. McMillan was sent back, his food having been badly frozen. Borup returned to land from 55.23 with two Eskimos.

The party now consisted of 12 men, ten sledges and 85 dogs. Bartlett was still beating out the trail two days ahead of Peary. Marvin took observations at 55.48, and then started on his return march. On the next march Bartlett made a record trip, covering 30 miles. This brought him to 55.38.

The party now consisted of Peary, Bartlett, Matthew Henson, the colored man who has been Peary's personal assistant on so many of his expeditions, the Eskimos, seven sledges and 60 dogs, and the journey northward was resumed. The ice was perfectly level as far as the eye could see. Bartlett took the observation on the eighty-eighth parallel on April 2, and then reluctantly returned, leaving Peary, Henson and three Eskimos, with provisions for 40 days, to make the final dash to the pole.

This reduced party started the morning of April 3. The men walked

TOO BUSY TO KICK.

It might be well for the "Insurgent" and their sympathizers to remember that the people are too busy to kick, and getting busier every minute.

The feeling prevailed for 60 days before congress adjourned, that what the country needed was a chance to do business. The tariff question was of minor consideration and as soon as it was settled, and discussion ceased, the busy hum of industry would so completely fill the land that everything else would be forgotten.

Everything was ready to move, simply waiting for a basis on which to establish values. The new tariff schedule might not be entirely satisfactory because no schedule of national scope can be made to meet the demands of a question so largely local, but the Dingley bill had served through a decade of unparalleled prosperity and protection to American labor was still the watchword.

The adjournment of congress came at last and a revival of business came to the front at a single bound.
From a car surplus we went to a car famine in 30 days. The steel mills of the country booked orders in August for 2,500,000 tons of steel. Factories put on a full quota of men, and every wheel is turning as many hours as it is permitted to run.

The little handful of "Insurgent" may travel over the land preaching the doctrine of discontent, but their arguments will fall on dull ears, for for denouncing their own party they are criticizing the best political organization in the land and the only one capable of conducting the affairs of government.

If times were hard and a great army of men unemployed, conditions might be different, but when work is abundant and wages good people have neither time nor inclination to listen to the grievances of disgruntled politicians. "Cotton's" posing as the great "national weakling" and assuming to be wiser than Solomon, or any man living since his time, has opened a campaign against President Taft and the republican party. But "Cotton's" is a political orphan entitled to about as much respect as the Milwaukee Journal.

This class of publications are destitute of influence. Of course the organ of truth at Madison is performing various and sundry stunts, but the audience is so small that the applause is not disturbing. While Congressman Cooper's barking at "Uncle Joe" Cannon will have about as much effect as the disturbances created by the Methodists and Protestants, who got after his scalp last year.

When a man gets too pure for his church there is nothing left for him but translation. It may bother him to find a good seat beyond the pearly gates, but that's where he belongs.

The disgruntled politician may not have a clear title to a house on the streets of the New Jerusalem and therefore might not be anxious to change his abode, but he has presented a claim on the Cherokee strip close to the democratic border, and should be satisfied with his environment.

"The people have become a representative of discussions on "representative government." "God's" patient poor" are doing fairly well with prospects of doing better, and they are reasonably content to let well enough alone.

There were so good for a decade that the luxuries of life became necessities, and people in this country lived better and were better clothed than at any time in history.

The only man who has a reasonable complaint is the salaried man with a fixed income where competition is so sharp that more pay is out of the question.

Time alone can regulate these conditions. The boys of the new generation have discovered that a good trade is better than a place held by the counter, just as they have discovered that the ministry offers but scanty inducement for young men.

The law of supply and demand is the only regulator and when the demand for salaried men exceeds the supply there will be no cause for complaint.

In the meantime the country has settled down to a steady pace under the new tariff law and it will require more than a handful of "Insurgents" to upset it.

WHY THE STONE-CRUSHER?

The suggestion that a business be established between the city and stone crusher plant revives the question, "Why the stone crusher?" It is one of the expensive luxuries that has produced more miles of poor streets than can be found in any city of the same size anywhere.

The only excuse for continuing it is that the city owns it and therefore it should not be idle. If that is a good argument why not ship it to Dovle lake and set it to work on good material? The output could be delivered in the city at less expense than the long haul, and the material left would be worth handling.

Better still, dismantle the outfit and buy the stone for half the money it costs the city to produce it.

The essential thing for street building is good material. It is an extravagant waste of time and money to use anything else, and yet Janesville has squandered a mint of money in attempting to build streets with rubbish that wouldn't stand an ordinary shower.

It is about time to call a halt and see if something can't be done to improve conditions. There is running today at the head of Goleva lake a gravel crushing plant, turning out 20 carloads a day of finished product.

The sizes are adapted to either filling or top dressing and nothing better can be found for street building. Janesville has an unlimited supply of this same raw material, and the government engineers who looked the ground over, two years ago, said that the city should have the finest streets in the land.

Yet we go on, year after year, turning out thoroughfares that are a disgrace to any community.

What the city needs for intelligent and economical government is a board of commissioners, and the taxpayers should lose no time in submitting the matter to the people, under the provisions of the new law. Six years of this sort of rule will give us good streets, and straighten out a number of other questions now influenced by politics.

The cities which have had prohibition forced on them against their will,
by county option, are in a sad plight.
The principle is wrong, for legal restriction on moral questions can only be enforced by moral sentiment.
Wholesome regulation is infinitely better than prohibition which does not prohibit.

Hartman's fortune is estimated from $50,000,000 up. His holdings in various railroads were so numerous that it is difficult to tell just what he was worth, but safe to say that his family will not suffer.

The voters can vote on commission rule at any time when they are ready to call an election by the proper petition. The cities that have tried it are well satisfied with results.

Illinois enjoys the reputation of having no "Insurgents" in its camp.
The state is to be congratulated.

The goddess who sits at the big

NOVEL BROOM HOLDER

Slips Over Handle and Can Be Stuck Into the Wall.

The life of a broom, like that of almost everything else, depends on the care that is taken of it. All broom-makers know that to stand a broom brush end on the floor will soon wear it out. Hence the number of devices to hold a broom by head or handle, one of the best of which is shown in the illustration. This holder was designed by a Pennsylvanian. It consists of a ring somewhat larger in circumference than the handle of a broom, with a sharp outstanding spur. Fitting over the ring is a spiral spring with an opening in the center. The ring is drawn down over the handle of the broom and the spring affords a resistance which makes the ring fit snugly. All that is necessary, then, is to hang the broom up on the kitchen wall or door by the spiral spring or woodwork, preferably the latter, because of its greater stability.

This keeps the broom proper free from dirt and from spreading.

An automobile tire that idea failed to be popular, especially among motorists who have had many punctures, is the sectional tire described by a Wisconsin man. This tire is made in a number of sections, say twelve, and each piece is absolutely independent of the others. Each section has its own valve and is inflated separately, and when all are blown up they hold together as firmly as if they were one solid piece of rubber. The advantage of this invention is readily apparent. When

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

LAUGH EARLY AND OFTEN.
Mirth is God's medicine. Everybody ought to bathe in it.—O. W. Holmes.

Mirth, a medicine?
Certainly, and a good one—better than half the preparations of materia medica. It is one of nature's real tonics, a balm for life's bruises, a salve for sorrows, a stimulant for mental pain, a panacea for wounded hearts.

Mirth, cheerfulness, is a better stimulant for the tissues of the body than drugs, which react. Laughter is an actual life giving influence. Another physician has said, "Fun is a food and necessary to wholeness as bread."

Therefore—laugh early and often.
Most of us take life altogether too seriously. We do not laugh enough, or if we do laugh it is a stinging sort of mirth that does not do much good.
We laugh so seldom we lose the disposition, the power, to laugh. Laughter is a habit. It may be cultivated.

A laugh is a massage.
Metaphors aside, a good laugh is a real massage treatment. When you laugh your diaphragm gets busy. In moving rapidly up and down it massages the liver, stirring up that organ to its duty. It also affects all the organs beneficially.

"Laugh and grow fat" is a shrewd observation of many generations.
The old kings were wise. They hired jesters to make merriment for them. And Lycurgus, able lawmaker, set up the god of Laughter in the public dining room of Sparta.

Laughter is a good buffer.
It is like the shock extinguisher folks put in the rear springs of their automobiles. It helps to carry one easily over the knobs and "thank-youmummys" of life's rugged road. It reduces friction to the minimum.

Laughter is normal.
It is a fact that good health and mental and physical harmony require that the fun loving forces that are in man should be released. Laughter releases them. If these forces are repressed one has an attack of the "blues." If totally repressed—insanity.
Laugh and succeed.

Men and women by thousands go every year to premature graves because they forget to laugh.
Laugh—and stay alive ground.

Something New For You

People very often say to me that their mother or father or some friend are not able to wear their artificial teeth.

I wouldn't be surprised if it was true that there are more lower sets of teeth in bureau drawers or worn in the owner's pockets than there are in their mouths today.

For the reason that it is very difficult to fit a lower set of artificial teeth after one's own teeth are all extracted.

To make a lower set of teeth satisfactorily has been very difficult, but I now have a new plate for the lower jaw which is wonderful in the comfort which it gives to the wearer, and the satisfaction in every way.

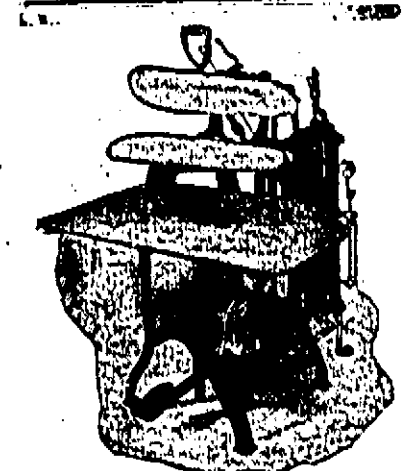

If your lower teeth, or your upper either, are unsatisfactory to you, just drop in, and I think that I can make you teeth that you can wear. At least, I have done so in scores of cases where people were entirely discouraged with over being able to get teeth that they could wear.

I believe I can fit you, and my prices are very reasonable indeed.

I also extract teeth painlessly.

A New Way of Saving Badly Decayed Teeth

Instead of gold and porcelain Inlays we use gold caps. Where one-third of a front tooth is gone, we cement on a gold cap, making it as durable as the rest of the tooth. We then have the cap of a porcelain body. For saving soft teeth we use gold and the alloy which keeps bright, does not turn black, and will preserve the teeth longer than any other material.

SHREWD CITIZENS DAZZLED

By Opportunity to do a Little Favor for U. S. Steel Corporation—Scheme Was Heartily Approved by "Antiphlogistine King."

OVER AND OVER THE STORY.
ENDING WHERE IT BEGAN.
THERE IS NO TRUCE
WITH PROPHET-QUICK—
THE WILY GOLD-BRICK MAN!
—Apologues to Klipping.

Eight thousand dollars is not a great fortune but it is a tidy little sum. It would buy a pretty fair little farm, or build several rather decent cottages, or even enable its possessor to own and operate an automobile of modest dimensions. The $100 and $200 contributors to the fund, however, were reckoning with much larger horizons. Each $100 invested they expected to return, like the good servant's shekels, increased tenfold. It was merely a matter of accommodation to a certain big corporation. No names were mentioned but one was allowed to infer that either the U. S. Steel or the Colorado Fuel & Iron or the Standard Oil Co. stood ready to accept the favor and reward it handsomely.

In Dear Old Wyoming.

In far-off Wyoming was a tract of rich mineral land, owned by the government and covered by the great corporation, whose identity was so solemnly guarded. The blue prints showed huge veins of iron ore that would mean 60 per cent. (Parenthetically it is conceded that these veins are still there, and that they will yield at least 40 per cent ore and plenty of it.) How to secure for the corporation the object of its fondest yearnings and win its overhanging gratitude? Nothing easier! Persuade a select group of fair-minded business men, who had no particular interest in iron mining, to allow their names and small amounts of money to be used temporarily in taking up 20-acre claims. Of course it would not be feasible to ask these men to go out and squat on the land. Small wage-earners and glad to attend to this detail for a small remuneration and who was on the scene of action and who was to get 20 per cent for his services when the property was finally turned over to the redoubtable and eager corporation, for $10 an acre, could be relied upon to attend to all such bothersome routine. It was simply a case of take a little from the boys, and reap the rich harvest.

First Citizens Interested

To abandon a fantastic allegory that makes Shubert's magic carpet look like a shabby door-mat, and state plain facts: the truth and shrewdness of the Janesville-business world became interested in the project. The list of shrewd attorneys, bankers, new chauts, and other professional and business men who subscribed would, if published, read like a select directory of the first citizens of the community. Both here and at Madison the offer was strictly limited. Nobody could take more than $200 worth and those who hesitated were "lost." In several instances money was returned to tardy ones with a word or two of explanation and regret. Such little incidents as these made the whole proposition look very good indeed.

"Antiphlogistine King"

Early last fall one Willard Tranter came here in company with a Mr. Thomas De Noon and hatched the plan. The two men were introduced by a third party, a Chicago real estate man who had been acquainted with De Noon for twenty-five years and who without doubt acted in good faith and really believed that the project was just the kind of a bonanza its sponsors claimed it to be. De Noon, it appeared, was owner of practically all the world's supply of antiphlogistine mud and was so busy shipping 20 carloads a day from his exorbitant beds and selling it for $50 a ton that he could not concern himself directly with small projects of this kind. However, he took a friendly interest in Neighbor Tranter's plans and was glad to vouch for him. Antiphlogistine, according to the label on the bottles, is "a compound of the highest quality and best ingredients, including arsenic, mercury, pure glycerine compounds of iodine," etc., etc., and is said to be a very good stuff.

Divvy-Up Deferred

According to the original plans the project was to reach its fruition in January. Later on Mr. Tranter sent word that the cherries would certainly be ripe by July. After a while the investors began to grow uneasy. They were unable to find out much about Mr. De Noon at the Chicago Athletic club and Mr. Tranter didn't always answer their letters. Now comes the Chicago Sunday American with the following dispatch:

"Wildcaters Busy"

"Choyenne, Wyo., Sept. 11.—That Wyoming as well as Colorado has proved a fertile field for 'wildcaters,' despite the stringent law here against such operations, is the report of State Geologist Edwin Hall, who has returned from northern Wyoming, where he concluded a three months' automobile trip through the state.

"He asserts that during the past three years mineral claim wildcaters have cleaned up not less than $100,000 in northern Wyoming and that the total probably far exceeds this sum. He will make immediate report of his finds to Governor B. B. Brooks.

Cites Specific Instance.

"Citing a specific instance of wildcatting, Hall asserts that since early in 1908 Willard Tranter of Sheridan, Wyo., and others not named, have defrauded eastern people of $30,000 through the fraudulent location of mining claims on alleged iron land in the vicinity of Sully, and that the same claims, some 200 of them, he asserts, were located on payment of eastern people of $101.20 per claim, with the understanding that Tranter and his associates later would dispose of the ground for $10 an acre.

"The $101.20 collected on each location was presumed to cover discovery work and recording; but Hall asserts that there is no evidence that any discovery work was ever done, and that every claim located was absolutely worthless to the Easterners for this reason, as location work is necessary to establish preliminary title.

More Than Fifty Victims

"More than fifty of the victims of this swindle have complained to the state geologist and the investigation which shows that gigantic swindles had been perpetrated was based on these complaints.

"In the vicinity of Douglas, Converse county, states Hall, more than 300 old locations have been fraudulently made, and with this deal Fred Pacey, a manipulator several years ago, and who was exposed in the federal court at Philadelphia, is connected.

"Hall does not care at this time to go into detail in regard to the other swindles unearthed. He states, however, that some of the mining companies now in the state are selling stock and dividing the proceeds on the basis of 20 per cent royalty on the purchase of property, which is the basis of the companies' 40 per cent to agents as commissions, and 40 per cent applied to office rent, the payment of salaries and other expenses. This, he says, is in violation of the wildcatting law, and he further asserts that the law is to be rigidly enforced hereafter.

"During his three months' tour of the state Hall reports that he everywhere encountered active development on a large scale of the natural resources. Near every town of northern Wyoming old development is in progress; there is much work in progress in the mining districts and new districts are being opened. Agricultural development is on an enormous and entirely successful scale.

SCIENCE NOTES

The theory has been advanced that the lower intestine is responsible for a great many of human distresses and accordingly for our short term of life and a doctor and investigator of this now proposes to remedy this condition of affairs by the removal of this organ in childhood.

Two of the most marvelous industries of this country is the mining of iron near Placerville, Calif., and of tungsten at Denierville, in Southern New Jersey. The iron in the former instance is found in these quantities in a natural cave where it is said to be 200 feet in depth in some places. The tungsten at Denierville is taken from the ground at a level of 1200 feet in twenty-five feet and is supposed to be the remains of a prehistoric forest, which became buried thousands of years ago.

The French university is endeavoring to establish a system of exchange of professors with foreign institutions the same as that which obtains between the United States and Germany. An appeal for funds for this purpose has been made and some generous responses have been made.

Dr. Hansen, the Arctic explorer, is making a tour of the Northern states for the purpose of continuing his study of ocean currents and sea temperatures, which have an important bearing on the questions of fisheries and the climate of Norway. The voyage is being made in a small private yacht, which has been furnished with ice sheathing and is otherwise suitably equipped. Dr. Hansen will cover the Norwegian sea towards Iceland the cruise will possibly be continued to Greenland.

The effect of different paints and coatings on the transmission of the heat from radiators has been made the subject of a lengthy investigation by J. B. Allen, who recently read a paper on the subject before the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers. He found that the transmission of heat was almost the same with 14 coats of paint applied to the radiator as with two coats, and that the effect apparently depended upon the last coat applied. From this he concludes that the best effect of the radiator is more affected by the condition of the surface than by the material through which the heat is conducted. He states, however, that the value for carrying the pigment may have some effect in the value of heat transmission.

As a better result was obtained with copper bronze and shellac than with copper bronze and linseed oil. In general, Mr. Allen is led to consider copper and aluminum the best materials for radiators, while white lead and zinc paint have only slightly less transmission effect than a coat of enamel.

Top Row—State Senator John M. Whitehead, Janesville; Secretary of State James A. Fronz, Wisconsin; John A. Aylward and Charles E. Lush of Madison and Herman L. Eber, former speaker of the Wisconsin assembly and present deputy insurance commissioner.

Madison, Wis.—When the committee of the New York legislature, which is touring the country studying the primary election system, its workings and results, came to Wisconsin, its members found considerable material awaiting them. In Wisconsin the primary is in force in all elections within the state and extends to an "advisory" primary which virtually amounts to the election of United States senators by vote of the people.

While the committee was conducting its hearings in Madison, Chairman Meade displayed considerable interest in the recent senatorial primary campaign, in which Senator Isaac Stephenson spent $105,000; and which resulted in a long legislative investigation. The committee also seemed particularly anxious to know whether it was true that "a poor man can't enter a primary contest." Most of the witnesses examined here were of the opinion that it was not true and against the experience with Senator Stephenson they cited the fact that all of the present state officers are men of moderate means.

The former instance is found in inexhaustible quantities in a natural cave where it is said to be 200 feet in depth in some places. In general, Mr. Allen is led to consider copper and aluminum the poorest coverings, and enamel as the best materials tried, while white lead and zinc paints have only slightly less transmission effect than a coat of enamel.

One would hardly look for the invention of an improved lighter, for so many substitutes are available, but such a thing has been recently devised by Axel von Wedelbach, the inventor of the Wedelbach mantle. This distinguished investigator has discovered an alloy of iron and thorium which, when struck against a piece of iron, emits very bright sparks caused by the oxidation of the detached particles. Tinder may be ignited surely and instantly without the necessity of the repeated trials which were necessary with the old flint and steel. While there will be no great general demand for this new article, it will no doubt be greatly appreciated by explorers and others who may find their way where matches are not available.

Something New For You

People very often say to me that their mother or father or some friend are not able to wear their artificial teeth.

I wouldn't be surprised if it was true that there are more lower sets of teeth in bureau drawers or worn in the owner's pockets than there are in their mouths today.

For the reason that it is very difficult to fit a lower set of artificial teeth after one's own teeth are all extracted.

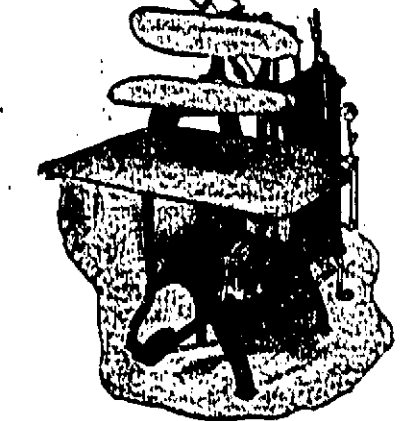

To make a lower set of teeth satisfactorily has been very difficult, but I now have a new plate for the lower jaw which is wonderful in the comfort which it gives to the wearer, and the satisfaction in every way.

If your lower teeth, or your upper either, are unsatisfactory to you, just drop in, and tell me about your troubles, and I think that I can make you teeth that you can wear. At least, I have done so in scores of cases where people were entirely discouraged with over being able to get teeth that they could wear.

I believe I can fit you, and my prices are very reasonable indeed.

I also extract teeth painlessly.

Eight thousand dollars is not a great fortune but it is a tidy little sum. It would buy a pretty fair little farm, or build several rather decent cottages, or even enable its possessor to own and operate an automobile of modest dimensions. The $100 and $200 contributors to the fund, however, were reckoning with much larger horizons. Each $100 invested they expected to return, like the good servant's shovels, increased tenfold.

It was merely a matter of accounting to a certain kind of corporation. No names were mentioned but one was allowed to infer that either the U. S. Steel or the Colorado Fuel & Iron or the Standard Oil Co. stood ready to accept the favor and reward it handsomely.

In Dear Old Wyoming.

In far-off Wyoming was a tract of rich mineral land, owned by the government and covered by the great corporation, whose identity was so sedulously guarded. The blue prints showed huge veins of iron ore that would assay 60 per cent. (Parenthetically it is conceded that these veins are still there, and that they will yield at least 40 per cent ore and plenty of it.) How to secure for the corporation the object of its fondest yearnings and win its overhauling gratitude? Nothing easier! Persuade a select group of fair-minded business men who had no particular interest in iron mining, to allow their names and small amounts of money to be used temporarily in taking up 20-acre claims. Of course it would not be possible to ask these men to go out and squat on the land. Small wagers would be glad to attend to this detail for a small remuneration and the middle-man who was on the scene of action and who was to get 20 per cent for his services when the property was finally turned over to the restless and eager corporation, for $40 an acre, could be relied upon to attend to all such bothersome routine. It was simply a case of take a little, give a little, and reap the rich harvest.

First Citizens Interested

To abandon a fantastic allegation that makes Shubad's magic carpet look like a shabby doormat, and state plain facts: the brain and shrew of the Janesville-business world became interested in the project. The list of shrewd attorneys, bankers, merchants, and other professional and business men who subscribed would, if published, read like a select directory of the first citizens of the community. Both here and at Madison the offer was strictly limited. Nobody could take more than $200 worth and those who hesitated were "lost." In several instances money was returned to tardy ones with a word or two of explanation and regret. Such little incidents as these made the whole proposition look very good indeed.

"Antiphlogistine King"

Early last fall one Willard Tranter came here in company with a Mr. Thomas De Noon and launched the plan. The two men were introduced by a third party, a Chicago real estate man who had been acquainted with De Noon for twenty-five years and who without doubt acted in good faith, and really believed that the project was just the kind of a bonanza his sponsors claimed it to be. De Noon, it appeared, was owner of practically all the world's supply of antiphlogistine mud and was so busy shipping 20 carloads a day from his exhaustless beds and selling it for $50 a ton that he could not concern himself directly with small projects of this kind. However, he took a friendly interest in Neighbor Tranter's plans and was glad to vouch for him. Antiphlogistine, according to the label on the bottles, is "a compound of the finest anhydrous and levigated argillaceous mineral, chemically pure, and containing compounds of 'iodine,' etc., etc., and is said to be built good stuff.

Divvy-Up Deferred

According to the original plans the project was to reach its fruition in January. Later on Mr. Tranter sent word that the cherries would certainly be ripe by July. After a while the investors began to grow uneasy. They were unable to find out much about Mr. De Noon at the Chicago Athletic club and Mr. Tranter didn't always answer their letters. Now comes the Chicago Sunday American with the following denials:

"Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 11.—That Wyoming as well as Colorado has proved a fertile field for 'wildcaters,' despite the stringent law here against such operations, is the report of State Geologist Edwin Hall, who has returned from northern Wyoming, where he concluded a three months' automobile trip through the state.

"He asserts that during the past three years mineral claim wildcaters have cleaned up not less than $400,000 in northern Wyoming and that the total probably far exceeds this sum. He will make immediate report of his finds to Governor B. H. Brooks.

Cites Specific Instance.

"Citing a specific instance of wildcatting, Hall asserts that since early in 1908 Willard Tranter of Sheridan, Wyo., and others not named, have defrauded eastern people of $30,000 through the fraudulent location of mining claims on alleged iron land in the vicinity of Sundance.

"These claims, some 300 of them, he asserts, were located on payment of eastern people of $101.30 per claim, with the understanding that Tranter and his associates later would disposed of the ground for $40 an acre.

JANESVILLE INVESTORS MULCTED TO THE TUNE OF ABOUT $8,000

"The $101.30 collected on each location was presumed to cover discovery work and recording, but Hall asserts that there is no evidence that any discovery work was ever done, and that every claim located was absolutely worthless to the Easterners for this reason, no location was necessary to establish preliminary title.

More Than Fifty Victims.

"More than fifty of the victims of this swindle have complained to the state geologist and the investigation which shows that gigantic swindles had been perpetrated was based on these complaints.

"In the vicinity of Douglas, Converse county, states Hall, more than 300 oil locations have been fraudulently made, and with this deal Fred Pacey, a manipulator several years ago, and who was exposed in the federal court at Philadelphia, is connected.

"Hall does not care at this time to go into detail in regard to the other swindlers unconnected. He states, however, that some of the mining companies now in the state are selling stock and dividing the proceeds on the basis of 20 per cent applied to the purchase of property, which is the basis of the companies' 40 per cent to agents as commissions, and 40 per cent applied to office rent, the payment of salaries and other expenses. This, he says, is in violation of the wildcatting law, and he further asserts that the law is to be rigidly enforced hereafter.

"During his three months' tour of the state Hall reports that he everywhere encountered active development on a large scale of the natural resources. Near every town of northern Wyoming all development is in progress; there is much work in progress in the mining districts and new districts are being opened. Agricultural development is on an enormous and entirely successful scale.

PERSONAL MENTION.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

ARE the young girls who go into business and professional life thereby unifying themselves as wives?

A neighbor of mine told me the other day that they were.

"I cannot be too thankful," she purred herself, "that my daughters are none of them business women. How much better a wife both makes John than if she had been working in an office these last few years. Instead of staying at home with me and learning to be a good housekeeper."

Now, many of the women I know are business women, and most of them plan to marry some time. Are all their husbands going to get "bad bargains"?

Personally, I don't think so. If you do, please, listen to this little experience.

An old friend of mine recently married a girl who had been a business woman ever since she graduated from high school eight years ago, and had had almost no training in housekeeping.

I wondered what his home life would be like and was much interested when, as an old-time confidante, I received from him the most enthusiastic praise of his wife, her disposition and her management of the home.

He is quick-tempered and nervous and not the easiest person in the world to make a home for, so when I met the girl I repeated the praises and begged for the secret.

"I know you are very happy," she said, "but I don't know as there is any secret. I guess the praise is mostly due to my business experience and the valuable lessons it taught me."

"When my husband comes home so irritated with the day's trials that he can hardly speak pleasantly, I remember the nights I used to go home just that way and how much refreshed I felt after dinner."

"So I don't decide right away that he has ceased to love me, but I wait until dinner is over and he is sitting in his favorite chair with his favorite brand of cigar between his teeth and then I go in and say, 'Well, it was a hard day, wasn't it? But never mind, it's over and who knows how much pleasant a one tomorrow will turn out to be?'"

"Then I sit down and commence where we left off the evening before in a most interesting article we were reading about discussing and before long in the interest, business cares are forgotten and before we go to bed he says, 'I feel so much rested, dear. I guess I was pretty cross before dinner, but I was so awfully hungry and tired.'"

The business woman may lack training in household details, but she has a trained mind, able to grasp new things, and can acquire that knowledge far more easily than the home-trained wife can learn some of the things every business woman knows.

She has the sympathy for her husband that comes from having been there herself. She has the tact in dealing with him that comes from her experience with all kinds of men.

She may not be quite so good a "housekeeper," but isn't it possible that she makes it up by being a better "homekeeper"?

Woman's Poultry Expert. Miss M. J. Powers, of Chicago, Gloucesterville, has just received the highest award in the poultry world. She has won over 1,000 prizes and exported poultry into every country. Her first prize was won with only twenty eggs. She is a poultry expert and has been in the business for many years. She has a large flock of poultry and is a very successful breeder.

Clerical Repartee. A country minister, in the course of his duties, on the church came to a house where, roast chicken was served for dinner. He had previously encountered a series of chicken dinners, and the chicken looked good. "Well," he remarked, "there's where the chicken enters, the minister!" "Hope, it does better there, than in my work," rejoined the host.

Teach Children to Swim. Last year, more than 32,000 children were taught to swim at the London public schools.

A Poor Way to Rise. It isn't good that anyone succeeds in getting high by "cutting down" his boss.

Boy Burglar Kills Himself. Michigan Lad Shoots at Officer Then Commits Suicide.

Freeport, Mich., Sept. 14.—John Washburn, 14 years old, shot and killed himself in the woods near here when about to be arrested for breaking into a grocery and hardware store.

A sheriff's posse found John and his cousin, Edwin Washburn, also 14 years old, shooting at a target with a stolen revolver. John Washburn surrendered himself. John Washburn fired one shot at Deputy Sheriff Minn before turning the weapon on himself.

Burlington Has New Vice-President. Burlington, Ia., Sept. 14.—W. W. Baldwin, assistant to President George B. Harris of the Burlington railway system, has been made fourth vice-president of the Burlington, the office having been created for him.

Bloomington Increases Pay. Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 14.—The Chicago & Alton railroad announced an increase in pay for section men, the new rate being $1.50 a day instead of $1.25 and the increase to date back to September 1.

The manufacturer urges that which he is best able to supply.

We have been studying what the large retailers in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and New York are doing and we are not afraid to ask advice.

By so doing, we feel that we have weeded out that which the largest retailers believe undesirable and secured styles that one can wear two seasons without feeling out of date.

The new things are arriving every day and we will be glad to show them to you.

READY-TO-WEAR GOODS

We realize that our store, being the youngest one in the city carrying ready-to-wear goods, has been subject to more severe criticism than those whose doors have been opened for years.

It is therefore most important that we give more time and thought to the selection of merchandise we offer than those whose trade is established. The fashion books may be strongly featuring certain styles while the consumer demands another.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS
HAD FIRST PRACTICE

Work of Preparing For Season's Football Games Was Begun Last Evening After School.

The first football practice of the season for the Janesville high school team was held last evening after school. Prof. Kaundon had charge of the squad and about a dozen turned out in uniform for the first practice.
The candidates will hold practice every day now and will be continued for a couple of weeks before they will play the opening game of the season.
There seems to be a plentiful supply of good material for a first team if the boys will only respond and come out to practice. An effort will be made to secure some of the young men who have played on scrub teams and who have made good there. There are a number of these in the lower classes and those interested in the team are desirous of getting them in.
Russell Wilkinson, John Brown, Vernon Merrill, and Francis Green are mentioned among the possible members of this year's eleven.

NEW STEEL COACHES
ON THROUGH TRAINS

Future Improvements Will Do Away With Danger From Fire In Railroad Wrecks.

Within a short time, should the plans announced by the company be carried out, Janesville will have the opportunity of seeing on the North Western through trains, what are perhaps the latest improvements in coaching for the comfort and safety of passengers. In addition to the road for new rails, an announcement has just been made of further improvements which will be of more interest to the traveling public.

Orders have been placed for one hundred and twenty-five steel, fireproof coaches, replacing chair cars, parlor cars, dining cars, and baggage cars. This equipment is now under construction and in all probability will soon be seen on the through trains which pass through Janesville.
In addition to the coaches, the road has ordered seventy-five new “Pacific” locomotives for use on through passenger trains and these will be delivered within the next two or three months. The immense capacity of these engines will enable them to haul at a high rate of speed and with the greatest ease, a loaded train of four or five coaches, pulling as many as fourteen passenger cars.

A description of the new coaches ordered is exceedingly interesting and shows, in comparison with the most of the cars now in use, the advance that has been made along the line of coaching for the safety and comfort of passengers. They are all equipped with non-collapsible heavily reinforced steel frames, with safety vestibules, Westinghouse high speed air brakes, and the latest improved draft gear. Nothing combustible enters into any part of the construction. The coaches are built with a steel floor which adds to the strength of the car and deadens the noise of the train, while even the frames of the seats are built of steel. Were a train made up entirely of these cars wrecked, there could be no possibility of the cars catching fire and burning, as in the case of the old coaches.

Even should there be a wreck the new coaches would preclude any possibility of “telegraphing” now so common in the case of wooden cars.
In the recent freight wreck in Deloit the steel coaches were practically undamaged while the wooden box cars were demolished. Although the type of cars were not the same, the indent of steel served to show the advance of steel over wood.

The new dining cars will also have features that will interest those whose pocket books are sufficiently lined to enable them to take advantage of the improvements made. Each car is arranged to seat thirty-six people, which is six more than the present type accommodations. Special improvements have also been effected in the arrangement of the kitchen and pantry in order to enlarge the capacity, facilitate service and ultimately economize. Together with the increase in the size of the diners has also come an enlargement in the day coaches which will be five feet longer than at present and with a correspondingly increased capacity.

Not only has the passenger department been improved but the facilities for carrying freight have been increased within the next year. Eight thousand modern type freight cars have been purchased. This will increase the carrying capacity of the road fifteen per cent, and will make eight freight cars to every mile of road operated, which is one above the average. To take care of these new freight carriers, orders have been placed for fifty new freight engines, each of which can haul forty per cent more than the largest type now in use.

CREATING A DEMAND.
Some people have wondered just how advertising is able to create a demand. A definite example will illustrate.

Last evening there appeared in The Gazette a very large and complete advertisement of a kitchen cabinet and club plan offer.

This advertisement will create demand for the cabinet, because it points out the many labor saving devices, the convenience of everything and shows how every woman can own one by just paying a dollar down and a payment per week.

That Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is too fatal to the good you can possibly derive from them. Little's Catarrh Cure,

Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the mucous surface of the system. In buying

SUTTON'S BODY IS EXHUMED.
Examination Shows His Mother's Charges Are Not Sustained.

Washington, Sept. 14.—When the body of Lieut. James N. Sutton, Jr., the young marine officer who met his death about two years ago at Annapolis, was exhumed at Arlington cemetery an autopsy performed by physicians, representing the navy department and young Sutton's mother, disclosed the fact that no bones were broken, although a contusion was found over the right eye.

It had been Mrs. Sutton's contention that her son's arm had been broken in the fight which preceded his death, and that, this being the case, the shot which ended his life could not have been self-inflicted.
